Gorilla™ Wood Glue Receives Handyman Club Seal of Approval

CINCINNATI (November 6, 2008) – Gorilla Wood Glue has earned The Handyman Club of America® “Member Tested and Recommended” Seal of Approval.

The Member-Tested Program is featured regularly in HANDY Magazine, the club’s official publication, in which members test products and rate them on characteristics like quality, performance, design, versatility and value, and provide an overall rating.

Gorilla Wood Glue received a 94% overall approval rating from members, and 99% stated they would recommended the product.

The complete Member-Tested results will be published in HANDY Magazine’s November/December 2008 issue and posted on their website at www.handymanclub.com.

About Gorilla Wood Glue

Gorilla Wood Glue is a water-resistant, non-toxic, cross-linking polyvinyl acetate formula (PVA) that offers strong bond strength, a shorter clamp time and a lower application temperature than other comparable woodworking glues, and it can be cleaned up easily with water.

The formula contains no dyes, and dries a natural color, which means no orange “after glow.” Once dry, it can be easily sanded or painted.

Suitable for interior and exterior use, Gorilla Wood Glue passes the ANSI/HPVA Type II water-resistance specification providing users with peace of mind for applications where there is limited exposure to moisture.

Gorilla Wood Glue can be applied in temperatures as low as 55 degrees Fahrenheit without concern over the glue becoming chalky and bonding poorly. It is also FDA approved for indirect food contact (cutting boards) and also works for radio frequency (R-F) gluing systems.

Gorilla Wood Glue is available in 8 ounce and 18 ounce sizes at retailers nationwide.
